

‘Where’s My Power?’ Energy Champions Call to Action

Do you and your organization want to save money and emissions through energy efficiency?

Join our Energy Champions program and book our ‘Where’s My Power?’ workshop including information on these subjects:

What is power? What is energy? Looking at our needs and wants when it comes to energy use. How do humans create energy? Describing different forms of produced energy and their effects around us, including pollution, climate change, and emergency preparedness. Presenting energy audit tools and reviewing energy efficiency programs and their results in Alberta. Delving into what true cost accounting principles are, and including Indigenous perspective. We offer our solar request for proposals template, including the template form itself, examples of its use, Request for Proposals distribution for installers, and process evaluation.

Benefits of participation include:

- Free ‘Where’s My Power’ workshop for your group, increasing awareness of energy use
- Free energy audit for your facility
- Working with your team to determine the most appropriate:
 - energy efficiency options specific to your operations
 - sources of funding for efficiency products, upgrades, and/or renewable energy
 - ways to track your energy changes, cost savings, and emissions reduction

We are looking for partnerships with:

- First Nations
- Businesses
- Municipalities
- Schools

We look forward to meeting you and your group. We want to work with you and your operations staff to look at ways to save you money! Saving money through energy efficiency also saves needless greenhouse gas emissions, and helps to prevent climate change. Working together, we support a sustainable future for our children and future generations!
